

Tungkol sa mga may-akda/About the Authors

Chelsea Denise Aquino (she/her) completed her Bachelor of Arts degree in Anthropology at the University of the Philippines Diliman. She is currently involved in mass media-related research and carries a deep interest in the anthropology of media, but some of her previous engagements include user experience in tech spaces, as well as social work and community development in the Philippines. When she isn't preoccupied with work, she finds time to bullet journal, watch anime, and explore various literary genres and forms.

Jules Cagurangan (they/them) recently earned their bachelor's degree in Anthropology at the University of the Philippines Diliman. They have always been drawn to the mundane human experience, constantly dabbling in various creative outlets in order to express its intricacies themselves. At present, they are focused on finding their own voice through illustration.

Jericco D. Calanog (he/him) completed his BA Anthropology degree at the University of the Philippines Diliman. His research interests include Asian studies, globalization, diaspora, and food culture. In his free time, he likes to consume stories through films, books, and music.

Danielle Casipit (she/her) holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman. Her interest lies in the anthropology of disaster, development anthropology, the intersection of technology and climate action, and climate communications. Currently, she works in partnership with international nonprofits and social enterprises to support them with their nonprofit fundraising and management needs.

Jeydah Cawed (she/her) finished her BA in Anthropology from UP Diliman where she pursued interests in early childhood education and reproductive health. She is now using that experience as a researcher of ecological anthropology and her work in upholding the recognition of human rights.

Doms Cordero (they/them) is a recent BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines. They currently serve as Secretary and Board Member (2024) for Ugnayang Pang-Aghamtao Inc, the anthropological association of the Philippines, and as National Convener of PAMANA, the only coalition of anthropology-based student organizations in the country. Their research interests include local notions of gender and sexuality, embodied ecologies, and exploring visual modes of ethnographic inquiry.

Alyssandra Mariel V. Costa (she/her) is a BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines Diliman and is currently pursuing a Juris Doctor degree at the UP College of Law. As a member of UP ASEZ, she actively engages in community service, volunteering for initiatives such as clean-up drives and blood donation campaigns. Her academic interests center on Criminal Law, Legal Anthropology, and Forensic Anthropology, where she aims to explore the intersection of law and culture. Outside of her studies and volunteer work, Aly is passionate about her cats, classical music, and studying biblical prophecies about Heavenly Mother.

Princess Veronica G. Cruz (she/her) holds a BA in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines. Her research interests include economic anthropology and cultural anthropology which motivated her to study resource insecurity for this fieldwork. She is now pursuing a career in market research. She enjoys playing video games and occasionally touches grass by traveling to places.

Joanne Grace G. De Guzman (she/her) is a BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines Diliman. Her current research interests include ethnolinguistics and social anthropology. Driven by her passion for exploring the complexities of human culture, she aims to make a meaningful impact through research. She usually spends her free time consuming Korean pop content, listening to music, watching TV series, and spending quality time with her cats.

Jessel G. Dela Torre (she/her) is a developing researcher specializing in embodied ecologies, environmental studies, migration, and the intersections of space and mobility. She holds a degree in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman and is an active member of Ugnayang Pang-AghamTao Inc. (UGAT). In her leisure time, she enjoys reading, photography, participating in fun runs, hiking, and taking long walks.

Marvin D. Dorosan (he/him) is an MA Archaeology student at the University of the Philippines Diliman and has completed his BA Anthropology degree from the same university in 2023. His research interests mainly revolve around the Anthropology of Space and Place, Southeast Asian Archaeology, Forensic Anthropology, Osteoarchaeology, and Palaeopathology. He is actively involved in the academic community as a member of various organizations like the Kapisanan ng mga Arkeologist ng Pilipinas, Inc. (KAPI), Tuklas Pilipinas Society, Inc. (TUKLAS), and the Ugnayang Pang-AghamTao, Inc. (UGAT), as well as the American Association of Biological Anthropologists (AABA). He is currently working as a Research Associate (Archaeologist) under the PANTROPOCENE Project, an undertaking initiated by the Max Planck Institute of Geoanthropology in Germany.

Precious Angelica Echague (she/her) is an emerging scholar interested in the anthropology of bodies, ecologies, and care. She is passionate about telling stories of the human experience and planning to further her studies in the field of ecology and sustainable development. If not working on her current research projects and exploring the world, you can find her in the climbing gym or at home, binge-watching TV shows on Netflix with her cats.

Sophia Jireh D. Guerrero (she/her) completed her degree in Anthropology from University of the Philippines Diliman, where she developed her research interests in urban anthropology, folklore, and local notions of health and illnesses. She is currently pursuing a Doctor of Medicine degree in her home province. Prior to medical school, she spent her time traveling and working as a writer-researcher supporting nonprofits in their missions through strategic grant writing.

Ma. Angelika R. Guce (she/her) is a graduate of Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman. Her deep curiosity to understand human behavior and decision-making from a holistic perspective led her toward a career in market intelligence research and project management. She has experience working on studies across various industries, including FMCG (food and snacks, personal and hygiene products, healthcare and over-the-counter medicine), utilities, and life insurance, where she derives actionable insights to inform strategic decisions and drive industry-specific impact.

Mark Alen H. Habal (he/him) holds a Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman, with research interests in the anthropology of illness, medical anthropology, and social anthropology. He is currently pursuing a Doctor of Medicine degree.

Jennina A. Licos (she/her) is a BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines Diliman. She currently works at a publishing company, where she helps promote engaging reading experiences and provides accessible, high-quality learning materials for Filipino children. This experience has fueled her passion for advocating children's rights and nurtured her love of books, further inspiring her to pursue a career in creative writing.

Francesca Mauricio (she/her) is an early-career researcher with an interest in the applications of anthropological thought in human rights and development. She completed her bachelor's degree in Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman in 2024.

Dale V. Mercurio (he/him) is a BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines Diliman and an alumnus of the University of the Philippines Anthropology Society. His research interests consist of Forensic Anthropology, Food Anthropology, and Medical Anthropology, along with memes and pop culture. He is currently working as a freelance writer. He also spends his free time reading comics, listening to music, playing video games, or weight training.

Garrick Ng (he/him) recently graduated BA Anthropology student from the University of the Philippines Diliman. He has actively participated in various student organizations, including the UP Anthropology Society, UP Chinese Student Association, and UP Red Cross Youth. His research interests primarily lie in the fields of food anthropology and medical anthropology. He is passionate about exploring the intricate relationships between culture, food practices, and health. He finds joy in playing games and sports, which not only provides entertainment but also serves as an outlet for relaxation and personal growth.

Gianina Elisha G. Ortega (she/her) graduated from the University of the Philippines Diliman in 2023 with a degree in BA Anthropology. Her research interests surround multispecies, economic, and socio-political anthropological studies. She is currently undertaking her Juris Doctor degree in the UP College of Law, and hopes to better understand and explore the interrelation of the law with human and indigenous peoples rights in the Philippines, and to help undervalued communities find representation in macro system discussions

Jonahlyn Rose S. Pagdanganan (she/her) is a graduate of BA Anthropology from the University of the Philippines Diliman, and she is currently working as a human resource management personnel. While her research interests include religion, folklore, and international relations, her current work has also opened her interest in corporate anthropology, particularly in the application of anthropology in human resource development and workplace culture. Outside of work, she mostly spends her time at home reading, cooking, or playing games.

Mikka Zaila P. Palisoc (she/her) graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Anthropology at the University of the Philippines Diliman in 2023. She is currently working as a human resources assistant, hoping that the path could be her starting point to explore more and learn what she would actually want to pursue next. Or maybe she just dreams of being a full-time furmom.

Bryan Pauchano (he/him) completed his bachelor's degree in Anthropology at the University of the Philippines-Diliman. An emerging third-world scholar, his research interest lies, broadly, in understanding human-environment relationships through multimodal and interdisciplinary approaches in collaboration with different communities and industries.

Nathan Luis D. Ramos (he/him) is a follower of Jesus Christ. He finished his Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology degree at the University of the Philippines Diliman. His research interests include ecological and urban anthropology, psychology, and environmental studies. He likes to spend his time working out in the gym, running, swimming, reading random articles, watching movies, and listening to music.

Ruth Makenzie B. Roque (she/her) is a BA Anthropology graduate from the University of the Philippines Diliman. She is currently working as a museum assistant, practicing collections management and providing educational programs on the development of clothing in the Philippines. She is passionate about museums and archival preservation, with the intention of furthering her career in such fields. She finds joy in listening to music, doing arts and crafts, scrolling through social media, and reading romantic comedy books in her free time.

Franchesca Emery M. Santiago (she/her) studied anthropology at the University of the Philippines Diliman. She is interested in the intersections of anthropology and art.

Aundrei Raphael R. Villaraza (he/him) is a BA Anthropology graduate at the University of the Philippines Diliman. He is interested in exploring the experiences of daily life, identity, and multiculturalism. He also likes to watch shows and movies, read books, and listen to music in his spare time.

Putri Layla Wadi (she/her) earned her BA Anthropology degree from the University of the Philippines Diliman. Her research interests include space, poverty, and feminist studies. She hopes to contribute in promoting the causes of different sectors namely women and the urban poor. She loves spending her time reading, hiking, and gardening.