

His published works include 'The Sentence Patterns of Twenty-Six Philippine Languages,' 'Tagalog and Other Major Languages of the Philippines,' and Filipino o Pilipino?.

LILY T. CHUA, Senior Lecturer in Linguistics and Asian Languages at the University of the Philippines, received her M.A. degree in linguistics at the UP in 1973 and is a doctoral candidate in Asian Languages and Literature at the University of Washington. She attended the 1975 and 1976 Linguistic Institutes at the University of South Florida and the State University of New York in Oswego, respectively. She also teaches linguistics in the Graduate School of the University of Santo Tomas.

MARILYN R. BRITANICO is a graduate student in linguistics at the University of the Philippines. She worked for two years as research assistant in a research project on Philippine languages and dialects in the Department of Linguistics and Asian Languages, UP.

VIVECA V. HERNANDEZ, who teaches Spanish at the University of the Philippines, is currently writing her thesis for the M.A. degree in linguistics at the UP.