About the photo:

As one ascends through the building floors, the different layers of space are also revealed. Through these different layers, the space is connected by a staircase which connects one level to the other, as if linking to the next adventure. With an unhurried motion of one foot over the other, one unfolds a myriad of spaces – bringing experiences that are unique from the others' who have gone before.

Gaining new perspectives from the top, you realize you are not the same person you used to be.
